Hi Everyone,

I hope you are already enjoying your weekend. I just wanted to send yet another update for Monday. First of all today's negotiations did not result in an agreement and the strike will definitely be happening on Monday.

Please be sure to read through the document I sent yesterday thoroughly. Here are a few key points highlighted as well as some new info:

- Arrive early: between rain, picketing across the city and possible blockages to the school site it is extremely important that everyone arrives early. I suggest you plan to be on campus by 7:15.
- Free Dress: Since there is a lot of rhetoric from UTLA about charter schools and rumors that charters will be targeted on Monday we have decided to give the students a free dress day so they are not so obvious in their uniforms.
- Messaging: I'll be sending an email to all the families on Sunday night with specific details but I would also like all the classroom teachers to send a remind message. There is still a lot of confusion about whether or not school is open. I will send you a sample text of the message you can send.

Best,
Kate
